

Interactive Environments and Emergent Technologies for eLearning
IEETeL 2010 Special Track –
Call for papers

13th Interactive Computer
Aided Learning Conference
ICL 2010

15 - 17 September 2010
Hasselt, Belgium

Rationale

The special track “Interactive Environments and Emergent Technologies for eLearning” (IEETeL 2010) takes place within the “International Conference on Interactive Computer Aided Learning” (ICL) in Hasselt, Belgium.

The aim of this special track is to bring together researchers, educators and technology experts to share and discuss the new solutions, trends and realizations of eLearning environments and the adoption of emergent technologies in a learning process.

This forum invites research, technical papers, and work in progress investigating eLearning environments process development and practices of their implementation in education to support university students as well as to prepare them to become self-organized and life-long learners. These include the technological aspect of environments building: “from scratch”, using open source software or mashup applications from a cloud as well as pedagogical strategies and solutions for utilizing such environments.

Topics of interest

- Web 2.0 Applications for Learning
- 3D Virtual Environments
- Semantic Web
- Educational MashUps
- Immersive technologies in ADL
- Networks/Grids for learning
- Adaptive and intuitive environments
- Personal Learning Environments
- Mobile learning environments and applications
- Augmented Reality Implementation
